Forty Young Women Willing Fight for "Old Glory."

NEW YORK, June 25,-Forty patriotic and pretty young women of Hoboken have organized the Young Lady Naval Guards, and their first public appearance was at the Harlem ship canal parade, last Monday. Any respectable girl between the ages of 12 and 25 is eligible to membership, providing she would swear to uphold the flag on all occasions, even at the risk of her life. The membership fee is 50 cents, and the dues 15 cents a month. The uniform is a sailor suit, including a blue skirt trimmed with white braid, a plain sailor blouse with a white flannel yoke bearing a miniature flag, and a round sailor hat similar to that worn by the sailors in the navy. The band of the hats bears the letters "Y. L. N. G."
The uniforms of the officers differ from that of the rank and file Instead of a blouse the officers wear a tight-fitting coat trimmed with gold braid; and bearing the usual emblems denoting the rank of the wearer. This is topped off with a pretty motto of the organization. The girls meet every Wednesday evening, and while they are drilling their beaux wait outside the hall for them. Twice a month the girls have a drill in full uniform. Miss Margaret Shotter, a New York cirl, commands the organization, and ranks as captain. Her uniform is what the other call "just too sweeet for anything." and she is decorated with six gold stripes and six stars. Miss Carrie Smith is surgeon, and Miss Lillian Phillips is paymas-ter. The guards will turn out on July 4, and all of them say they are willing to die any time fighting for the Red, White and Blue.

GERMANY'S BIG CANAL

EMBASSADOR VON THIELMANN IN-TERVIEWED AT WASHINGTON.

His Views On the Great Enterprise Just Completed and Other Matters-Output of Petroleum.

WASHINGTON, June 25. - Baron Von

Thielmann, the new German embassador,

who presented his credentials to the State Department yesterday, gave an interview to-day on current German-American questions. He was asked as to the Kiel canal, not the details of the recent opening, which have come by cable, but the commercial and strategic importance of the new waterway. "The project of a deep-water canal connecting the Baltic with the North sea. was devised a century or more ago," said he, "but it was not until about twenty years ago that the German government took it up and gave it practical form. It has been built entirely as a government enterprise, without private interests. A feature that deserves special attention is that the entire work, involving an expenditure of about forty millions, has been completed at cost below the original estimates by $200,000. This is probably without a parallel in the construction of great public works. And, besides completing the canal inside the estimates, a high bridge, costing about $500,000, has been built in addition. Although built by Germany, it is open to the world on exactly the same terms as to German "Why is it," the embassador was asked,

"that the cables report German ships grounding in the canal?" "That is due," said he, "to the presence at Kiel of the largest ships afloat, which are participating in the celebration. But the ordinary commerce between the Baltic and the North sea is in vessels of 800 to 1,200 tons and of light draft, whereas these great war ships at the celebration drew as much as twenty-four feet. Furthermore, he opening of a canal does not mean that is completed. There must be dredging, leepening and repairing constantly." The embassador was asked as to the sigdificance of Emperor William's speeches in showing Germany's desire to maintain peace. He replied: "Ever since the war with France, Germany has been sincerely desirous of having peace with the rest of

"What are the prospects?" he was asked, 'that Germany will participate in an international monetary conference?" "The agitation for silver," he said, "came mainly from the agrarian population in the north of Germany, and was largely due to the low prices of farm products." He did not believe the imperial government would take any steps toward the calling of an international monetary conference until after the Reichstag assembled in November, and great deal then would depend upon that

When asked if Germany intended to re move the restrictions put in force last summer against American cattle, the embassador replied that this would not be delayed after Germany was assured that our cattle were free from Texas fever, and he denied very positively that Germany's policy respecting American cattle was in retaliation for the differential duty levied by the American tariff law on German sugars.

OUTPUT OF PETROLEUM.

Increase Last Year in Indiana Was 1,300,000 Barrels. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Several notabl features of the production of petroleum in the United States during 1894 are pointed out in the report of Special Agent Joseph D. Weeks, of the United States Geological Survey. The principal features were the continued decline in production in the older fields and the increase in the newer, especially in California and the Ohio and Indiana fields; increase of consumption over production resulting in a heavy decline in stocks held at the wells and in the increase in price as compared with 1893. The chief increase in production was in the eastern Ohio district, snowing 581.975 more barrels than in 1893, the standard barrel being 42 Winchester gallons. The produc-tion of New York declined almost 79,000 barrels and Pennsylvania over a million Ohio's output increased arrest half a million barrels and Indiana's about 1,300,000. Colorado's output decreased about 80.000 barrels; California's increased over while the production in Kansas which did not appear as a producer in 1893, aggregated 40,000 barrels in 1894. The total increase for the entire country was barrels, the last year's product being 49.344.516 barrels. At the close of the year the stocks of crude petroleum in the Allachian oil field were 6,499,880 barrels, reduction of nearly six million barrels as compared with the previous year and against a decline of only 600,600 in production. Wyoming and Kansas are added to the petroleum producing localities, the former's fields showing a total production of 2,369 barrels. Both of these fields are cited ing the Consular Service. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Probably the result of the success of the attempt to secure a consular clerk by competitive examination, the attention of Secretary Olney has been drawn to the feasibility of choosing United States consuls in similar fashion, which would be in a measure in the line of civil service reform. There are at present about four hundred consular palces. and at every change of administration the pressure brought to bear on the President and the Secretary of State to secure appointments to this service is overwhelming and the many changes which result in the personnel invariably throw the entire serv ice into confusion and suspend for a consid erable period of time its beneficial workings Secretary Olney's attention has been drawn to the fact that in the administration of President Grant a rule was made by the President requiring an consuls to be examined by a department board prior to appointment, and it is possible that he may revive and even extend the workings of this rule if the President consents. As these officials, according to the Constitution, must be confirmed by the Senate, the selection of consul by competitive examination would not necessarily be tantamount to an appointment, for the Senate could still exerise its power of rejection of the nomina tion. A strong point has been made by the superior record of the few consuls now remaining in the service who were appointed n President Grant's time after examination. although it is true in their cases the examinations were not fully competitive.

Captain Howgate's Case. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- The case of Capt. Henry W. Howgate, recently convicted in the Criminal Court of forgery and falsification of the government accounts, Court of Appeals during the first week in October. His counsel are preparing a bill of exceptions to carry the case to the higher court, and expect to file it in a few days. The feature of the bill and the point on which the strongest fight will be made is the "fugitive from justice" question. It will be contended that Howgate was fully entitled to the benefits of the statute of limitations, and that the position of the court, as set out in the charge to the jury, and in overruling many points made by the defense was wrong. The sentence may be pronounced by Judge McComas during the present week, although no date has been fixed as yet. The offenses of which Capt Howgate was convicted make him liable

WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Of all the tweny-six contests for seats in the next House which Clerk Kerr has opened in accordance with the law for the purpose of deciding what part of the testimony shall be printed, that of Goodwin vs. Cobb, from the Fifth Alabama district is the only one which has excited any controversy. In this case Mr.

Mr Cobb also complains that a portion of the testimony offered was taken after the expiration of the time allowed by the statutes.

General Notes. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- Secretary Herbert to-day issued an order directing the Alert, on her arrival at Callao, Peru, to relieve the Monterey, and the latter vessel to return to Mare Island Navy Yard. United States Minister Strobel, at Santiago, has sent to the State Department an account of the burning of the Chilean capitol building, on May 18. The edifice was regarded as the finest in Chile, and but very little of the furniture or archives were saved. The loss is estimated at about $1,000,000 United States gold, without con-

Filibusters at Work on the Pacific Coast-Attention of Washington Officials Called to the Conspiracy.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 25.-The schooner

G. W. Watson, which cleared from this port at the local customs office last night, with 575,000 feet of lumber for Honolulu, intends to take on field-pieces, small arms and ammunition off Cape Flattery. A large shipment of arms and ammunition has been made to the Sound by rail, and is now either stored or cached at various points along the Sound in the vicinity of Everett and Whatcom. After the Watson rounds Cape Flattery, it is said that she will dump her big cargo of lumber into the sea and a large number of small sloops and schooners will sail seaward from near the points named, bringing the new cargo. If her plans do not miscarry, an insurrection may be expected to follow.

A bold scheme is said to have been unearthed by the Government agents recently. It is said that some San Francisco shippers and a woman in Honolulu who is worth 500,000 propose fitting up a schooner at this port with heavy guns and small arms, and then go to a small island in the Hawaiian group and fortify themselves. It was calculated that the strength of the Royalists and the supposed ailies of ex-Queen Liliuokalani in San Francisco would greatly help out the scheme. It is also said that a certain man in this city, well known for his fighting ability, was offered command of the expedition at a salary of $350 per month. If successful he was to have a high position under the Royal Gov-

Uncle Sam May Act. WASHINGTON, June 25 .- It is probable that the government authorities concerned in the execution of the nettrality laws will have to turn their attention to the reported filibustering expedition against Hawaii as well as to those against Florida. Hawaifan officials have been cognizant for some time of the plans at San Francisco to fit cut an expedition intended to overtakow the Dele government, and their agents on the coast have been active in securing aformation. News reaching here from Hawaii has shown that the authorities took a grave view of the matter. NEW YORK, June 25 .- There will be another American pilgrimage to the shrine of Lourdes this year, under the direction of the Fathers of Mercy. WEDDED IN ENGLAND

DUKE OF AOSTA AND PRINCESS HELENE OF ORLEANS MARRIED.

"Swellest" Event of the Kind Years-The Bride Cheered on Her Way to the Church.

LONDON, June 25 .- Prince Emanuel Fili-

berto, Duke of Aosta, nephew of King Humbert, of Italy, was married to-day at the Church of St. Raphael, Kingston-on-Thames, his bride being the Princess Helene of Orleans, second daughter of the Countess of Paris, and sister of the Duke of Orleans. The wedding ceremony was a most brilliant affair. The route from Kingston railroad station to the church was spanned by triumphal arches made dazzling with color by a multitude of French and Italian flags and ensigns and by escutcheons representing the arms of Savoy and of the House of Orleans. Enthusiastic masses of people lined the streets of Kingston and cheered the arrivals most heartily. Nine gentlemen of the Orleans household in full dress, black lined with blue silk, with gold buttons and white waist coats, and wearing many orders and other decorations had charge of the church. There they received the ladies and gentlemen, the former in gorgeous toilettes and the latter nearly all in splendid uniforms, who came by carriages in streams from all parts. Among the first to arrive were the Prince and Princess De Joinville, the Duke of Aumale, the Duke of Chartres, Princess Margaret of Orleans, the Austro-Hungarian embassador to Great Britain, Count Von Ctratez, Sir Frederick Leighton, president of the Royal Academy, and the Duke and Duchess of Teck.

The interior of the church was made positively beautiful with artistic floral decorations softened by the judicious use of palms, ferns and other plants, contrasting nicely with the colors of the ladies' tollettes and with the uniform of the military guests. In the front of the altar were two gold chairs, upholstered with red velvet for the use of the bride and bridegroom, and on either side of them were smaller gilt chairs for the accommodation of the witnesses of gold, were reserved for the members of the Orleans family and for the relatives of the Duke of Aosta. The Infanta Eulalie, of Spain, arrived at the church at 10 a m. and was closely followed by the Duke of Orleans in evening dress carried by four gardes chasse (game keepers) in their handsome blue uniforms from the chateau d'Eu. The Duke took the seat on the left of the bride's chair. The Duke of Aosta in the uniform of his regiment (he is colonel of the Fifth Regiment of Italian Siege Artillery) and wearing the Order of the Black Eagle, entered the church at 10:20 a. and shook hands cordially with the Duke of Orleans, after which he seated himself in the gold chair prepared for his use. The next arrivals were the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and after them came Prince Von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, the German embassador, and M. De Staal, the Russian embassador to the Court of St. James, and other distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, after whom came the Prince of Naples, Vittorio Emanuel, the heir apparent to the throne of Italy, Prince Ferdinand of Routhe Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, the Duke of Montpensier and the Infanta Marie Louise of Spain (Duchess of Montpensier) and many other members of the royal familles of France, Spain, Italy, Portugal and Great Britain. All the members of the different royal families were in uniforms of different branches of the military or naval services of their respective countries, and all were gorgeous with decorations, giving to the inside of the church a dazzling glimmer of gold and precious stones, to which the silks and laces, jewels and flowers of the ladies formed a most beautiful sitting. The air was fragrant with perfume of flowers, and from the organ came soft, soothing murmurings of preparatory music as loud cheering echcing from a distance an-nounced the coming of the bride.

THE BRIDE CHEERED. Princess Helene of Orleans, the personification of womanly health and beauty. distinguished as a graceful athlete and charming linguist, occupying a closed carriage with her mother, the widowed Countess of Paris, crossed Kingston bridge at a quarter of 11, bowing modestly to the masses of people lining the route to the church. Hats and handkerchiefs, parasols and sticks were waved enthusiastically in the air, and the charming Princess was visibly affected by the warmth of the welcome accorded by the people. This enthusiasm on the part of the masses continued, hearty cheers rending the air, until the Princess entered the little old church of St. Raphael, in which her parents were married in May, 1864. The Duke of Chartres, uncle of the bride, who was also married in that quiet little English church in 1863, awaited the coming of the bride at th church door and conducted her, with oldtime grace and courtesy, to the vacant gold chair on the left of the bridegroom, all present rising to receive the Princess Helene. The Countess of Paris followed the bride to the altar.

So soon as the bride was at the altar the service began, both bride and bridegroom making responses in English in clear voices. At the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, which only lasted ten minutes, the Duke and Duchess d'Aosta entered the sacristy, followed by the Prince of Wales and the Prince of Naples. While the marriage registry was being signed the Chartres carried the register to the old Duke of Orleans for the latter's signature. After these formalities had been complied with a low mass was celebrated, the service being most impressive. The bride was collected throughout the ceremonies, but it was plainly apparent that her mother was deeply affected. St. Raphael's Church was crowded to its extreme capacity. The perfume in the structure was almost overpowering. Crowds of the people who had of Mercy to undertake the organization to get within the door, and had to content themselves with waiting in the gardens about the church or with occupying the best possible points along the route to and from the church. The bride and bridegroom left the church to the strains of a wedding march and were driven away in a closed carriage amid tremendous outbursts of cheering, to Orleans House, at Twickenham, not far distant, where the wedding breakfast was served to the members of he different royal families present at the

The Right Rev. John Butt, Roman Catholic bishop of Southwark, of St. George's Cathedral, officiated at the marriage in full canonicals, assisted by Mgr. d'Hulst, the chaplain of the Orleans family. The bride was given away by the Duke of Chartres, owing to the fact that the Duke of Orleans is still unable to stand as a result of the breaking of his leg, caused by a fall from his horse while out hunting recently near Seville, Spain.

The wedding dress of the bride was sumptuous creation of exquisite brocade shot with pale rose pink. The dress was brocaded all over with flowers of gold and silver, and was draped with old Italian lace, the gift of relatives of the bridegroom. The bridal veil was a magnificent specimen of Chantilly lace about fourteen feet long, made at Bayeux, and having a border enriched with a floral pattern diminishing in elaboration as it reached the head. Springing from the train were two branches forming in the middle a medallion enclosing the arms of the bridegroom. surmounted by the cross of Savoy and the arms of the royal family of France With the fleurs-de-lis above the two escutcheons, Kingston and the route to Orleans House was crowded with people, who cheered the In London four hotels in addition to the Hotel Bristol, occupied by the Countess of Paris, were secured for the use of the wedding guests and their suites, and at the Hotel Bristol a number of dinner parties were given in honor of the newly-married couple. This evening the Duke of Orleans gave a dinner at the Hotel Metropole to

The Orleans family mourning for the late Count of Paris was suspended for the occasion and, in consequence, all the ladies present in the church wore colored toilettes and bonnets with or without strings. The wedding presents were so numerous that columns would be required to give a complete list of them. They included a magnificant set of pearls and diamonds and a streets. SANGER BREAKS A RECORD. The New Professional Rides a Half Mile Unpaced in :58 2-5.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 25,-Walter C. Sanger rode for the first time as a professional at the National Circuit meeting of the West End Wheelmen, at this city, today. He succeeded in lowering the halfmile world's record unpaced, as made by John T. Johnson, in Philadelphia, last Saturday, going in :582-5. Owing to the track being rough at the pole, Sanger was compelled to ride very wide, and his performance was a notable one. Edward Cannon Bald again won the race of the day, the mile open. Zeigler failed to qualify in his heat of this race, those qualifying being Cabanne, Bald, McDuffie, Coulter, O'Connor, L. C. Johnson, Helfert and Coburn, who lined up on the tape in the order named. Mayo and Saunders paced, and there was a wide scramble to catch the pace-makers.

Bald succeeded, with L. C. Johnson on his rear wheel, Coulter, Cabanne, E. C. Johnson, Helfert and O'Connor following in close three-quarters. Following instructions, all exchange for greenbacks of large denomislowed until Pat O'Connor made a rush for the front, starting the final sprint. Down the stretch, L. C. Johnson had a wheel's length lead, and Bald had fallen back into the bunch. The Buffalo boy bore out his name when, like a cannonball, he shot to the front and won the contest by a narrow margin from Cabanne, L. C. Johnson being third. Coulter ran fourth in one of the hottest finishes of the season. Titus undoubtedly lowered the mile handicar competitive record in the mile handl-cap list, but as no watches were stopped on him, the record could not stand. Titus, Cabanne and Coulter were on scratch, and Sims, who was under suspension, in show-ing Titus, jumped the gun for several ing Titus, jumped the gun for several lengths. Rumors in Wall Street Regarding & Modification of the Contract with the Bond Syndicate.

WASHINGTON, June 25 .- For the first time since Dec. 1, 1894, the gold reserve to-day exceeded $100,000,000. The exact figures are $100,830,355, with an available net balance of $184,978,457. The gain since Feb. $58,047,395 in gold reserve and $42,282,887 in the net balance. The syndicate still owes the government about $6,000,000 in foreign gold, their payments up to this time having slightly expeeded the contract requirements. A dispatch from New York says: "Wall street is full of rumors as to the bond syndicate operations and the Treasury Department. Neither Mr. Morgan nor in connection with the matter beyond this fact, that the gold surplus reserve of the treasury will within twenty-four hours, when the gold now deposited goes through the books of the treasury, be $107,450,000 It is understood that this sum is reached by the settlement of the bond syndicate's indebtedness to the government as regards the payment for the bonds. It is further believed that the bond syndicate either has or will at once receive the full amount of bonds due it. There is some vague talk about an arrangement for a further issue of bonds by the government, but there is no suggestion of such a course from any authoritative quarter, as the managers o the last bond syndicate will say nothing whatever on the subject.

"The payment into the subtreasury, yes-terday, of $6,500,000 is, according to the Evening Post, believed to be proof that the government has agreed to a modification or change in the contract with the syndicate so far as requiring the syndicate to import $32,500,000 of gold; but as the syndi-cate managers admit that their contract does not expire until October, and that they are required to do all in their power in the meantime to maintain the government's gold reserve, they may yet have to import gold unless they continue to prevent its exportation. Of their ability to do that until Oct. 1 no one seems to have any doubt, least of all the syndicate managers. The Evening Post continues: Thus far the syndicate has imported on account of the new 4 per cent. bonds $15,545,000,-it has $200,-000 of imported gold in the assay office to its credit-and has deposited in the treasury altogether more than $66,000,000 of gold That the mangers of the syndicate are masters of the sterling exchange market, and thus able to maintain the government's gold, was said by bankers to-day to be shown by the fact that they have notifled the members of their syndicate of their intention to return to them, this week, the balance of 60 per cent, of the money they advanced in gold for the syndicate to deposit in the subtreasury last February to try. This 60 per cent. will amount to many millions of dollars and when they get it the bankers, members of the syndicate, say they will not know what to do with it. as there is such a plethora of money that it is almost unlendable except on call at unprofitable rates. An indication of the question was seen to-day at the subtreas-

Treasury officials in Washington have no information of the reported purpose of the syndicate to deposit, to-morrow, the entire amount of foreign gold due under the contract. They say, however, that they wanted not be surprised if this was done, as the contract permits them to deposit any amount in excess of 300,000 ounces pe month whenever they see fit. Up to this make of the course pursued by the syndicate, for, so far as they know, every obligation contained in the contract has complied with, As to the rumor in New York that the government has permitted a modification of the contract, allowing the syndicate to deposit more than half of the whole amount in domestic gold, Assistant Secretary Hamilton said: "There has been no modification of the contract. The proamount of the loan shall be brought abroad is to be carried out. Some of the importations of foreign gold were made in advance of the time stipulated in the condeclined to enter further into a discussion of the matter.
